with the words: "In the language of Ossian, I hear the voice of the years that are gone; they roll before me with their deeds."

Major Hunter Speaks.

Major Robert Hunter, custodian of Confederate Records, was the next speaker introduced by the toastmaster. Major Hunter told his audience that he had been graduated from the University of Virginia in 1883, and passed the year in the South, came next on the program. He reviewed the early days of this country, passing to modern times, he discussed at length some of the duties of modern citizenship.

He also spoke of the right and duty to educate not only the white race, but also the colored people of this country. Governor Montague's speech created a deep impression, and he received much applause.

After the last toast had been drunk and the last words spoken, the alumni joined together in a tremendous yell which they had learned in their undergraduate days at their old Alma Mater, and which they still strive to give expression to whenever the occasion permits.

The banquet was one that will not soon be forgotten. Around the table were gathered men who have hardly begun their careers and others who are nearing the close of long and useful careers to their State and their country. The banquet was a most picturesque and a most picturesque and beautiful scene.

Mr. Mark W. Pierce, of Glenn, N. H., who lived in Saco Valley for 57 years, has filled every office in the gift of his townsmen; was a stage driver in the White Mountains before the railroad was built. He is now in his 81st year, is a remarkably well-preserved man, and tells many interesting stories of his early career and of how DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY has pulled him through many a tight place and kept him vigorous and strong, although he has passed the fourscore mark.

MR. MARK W. PIERCE.

In a recent interview Mr. Pierce said:

"I have used DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY as a medicine for something like six years."

"Several years ago I had a slight shock. My doctor prescribed DUFFY'S PURE MALT WH
